XY debuts game-changing data solution for high-end wealth management

EVA: independent data intelligence for global estate orchestration

Zurich, August 29, 2016 – XY, an international group specialized in strategic consulting and the control of large estates, presents EVA, a unique and exclusive data intelligence solution for ultra-high net worth individuals, large organizations and governments worldwide who seek unbiased services free from conflict of interest.

XY bridges the information gap between financial institutions and estate owners that sees the latter kept in the dark when trying to access factual information about their estates according to their requirements. Giving birth to EVA, the world's first estate orchestration technology (EO-Tech) platform, XY introduces an end-to-end data intelligence solution, seamlessly supported by best-in-breed algorithms developed by its scientists.

EVA is a uniquely powerful instrument, designed to provide an all-new, user-friendly and intuitive navigation experience to estate owners. It displays real-time wealth management data and supports client-driven interrogations and sharing of information.

"EVA stands for end-to-end vision and action," says Daniele Migani, Founder and CEO of XY S.A. "From now on, the estate owner's vision and strategy can be supported in real-time by independent data intelligence. This is part of the unique value proposition that sees XY in the position to assist clients as an independent advisor and referee within wealth management ecosystems."

Featuring an intuitive and visually appealing user interface, EVA supports direct interrogation by estate owners, who can now efficiently navigate information at their discretion. Well ahead of the latest and most performing fintech systems, EVA is a quantum leap in technology evolution and supports global estate orchestration as an end-to-end data solution. It is interrogated by XY clients and XY consultants alike, and it places the information required at their fingertips with the level of detail and type of elaboration requested.
